Madrid Sept.r 1. 1831

My dear Mr Lennox

I have not answered yours of the 28th July sooner, for I have not been very well, no doubt the excessive heat has been the principal cause. This summer has been the most oppressive I have ever experienced in Spain. We may now, however, hope for fresh breezes, that will relieve both mind and body, which I stand greatly in need of.

I sincerely thank you for the trouble you have taken in investing poor Little £200.

When you write again let me know what balance remains, for I dont well remember the sum, I only remember that it must be unfortunately very small.

You will have the kindness to retain the stock in your hands as more convenient for both of us.

Dont think for a moment that I have forgotten to send my brothers letters, I have been waiting the return of our son Louis to forward them to the Embassy. I will wait till the middle of the month, and if he is not in Madrid by that time, and you are in want of them, I will forward them by post.

When my hand is a little steadier, I will copy out the Drama though I fear from what you say, there is little chance of turning to advantage. With love to your wife, I remain dear Mr Forman

Very sincerely yours

Fanny Kemble Lomes
